Introduction

In accordance with the spirit of fair competition and the pursuit of greater player engagement, the FIA Co-op Formula 1 League hereby announces regulatory changes to the process of determining the race calendar for the upcoming season. These changes will be implemented commencing from the next season, and they are contingent upon the participants' rankings in the Drivers' Championship.

Player Influence on Race Calendar

Player Classification

The extent of player influence in shaping the new race calendar will be dependent upon their respective standings in the Drivers' Championship. Participants will be categorized based on their performances in the preceding season.

Influence Gradation

(a) Highest-Ranked Player: The highest-ranked player, i.e., the top performer in the Drivers' Championship, will wield a limited degree of influence in calendar selection. Their ability to dictate race choices will be constrained compared to lower-ranked participants.

(b) Lower-Ranked Players: Participants who are positioned below the highest-ranked player will have comparatively more say in determining the race calendar. As such, their choices will carry greater weight in the final selection.

Veto Power for Championship Winner

Veto Eligibility

The existing rule granting veto power to the Drivers' Championship winner shall remain intact. A player who clinches the Drivers' Championship title will be entitled to exercise one veto concerning the race choices made by other participants, subsequent to the completion of the voting process. This privilege extends to situations where races are both selected and eliminated.
